

Artist of the Month—Diane Andrus

I have been doing art for a long, long time. I was always the class artist in school. I majored in art education, then later went back for a degree in graphic design. I worked in publishing for a while and drifted into picture framing. I framed art for about 35 years. I did a lot of the framing in the Eisenhower Center- a great honor.

Always kept painting during these years, watercolors and pet portraits. I have a panel in the Rohan Center and an acrylic in Fenney Rec. The last few years I have gone back to clay sculpture; channeling my inner, kindergarten-plasticine-pounding, soul. Animals have always been my favorites.
